

CANADIAN FIRES WILL COST MILLIONS

Sylvan Beauty Ruined

By The Canadian Press
As scattered showers in most sections brought some relief to the fire-fighters throughout Ontario, flames raged with new violence
in Alberta and British Columbia.
On the trail of the heavy-wooded forests of both sides of the boundary between the two western provinces, fire ate through stands of valuable timber.

A lone airship pilot, a $10,000 fire equipment at Sudbury, and reports of the finding of sticks of dynamite near fires in the same section, and two more reports in Ontario clouded the picture. In one picture, a picture otherwise brightened by scattered showers.
Pilot Bill Tweed of the Twin Lakes base in the Sault
Ste. Marie area remained missing today.

CALGARY, Aug. 15.—What was left of southeastern Alberta's once fine forest was being devastated by fire last night, the scourge that in the past month had taken its toll of life and invaluable monetary losses.

In the heavily-wooded foothills on both sides of the international Columbia boundary from the international border north to Banff yesterday, the flames were eating through stands of timber fully untouched.

Roosevelt Hammers
At War Profiteers;

To Keep U.S. Neutral

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

CHAUTAUQUA, N.Y., Aug. 15.—President Roosevelt ended what he termed a "holiday" last night with an address in which he hammered at war profiteers and pointedly told Congress to keep the United States out of clapping through the hall.

Without specific mention of any particular war profiteer, he asserted that "so long as war exists on earth there will be war profiteers."
The even, rather flat speech which most ardently desired peace was delivered at Chautauqua, where

Mr. Connell said no candidate from the new party would contest the Vancouver-Burrard by-election set for Sept. 2.

SUDBURY, Ont., Aug. 15—Reporters were at the scene late Friday that forest fires were threatening the town of Pakenham, a few miles south of French river in the French River district. No details were immediately available.

Cause of the fire which destroyed several houses in the main business section where a pump house, causing $10,000 damage was undetermined last night. Some 15 men were in the building, used for storing equipment and repairing of pumps and pumps, when fire broke out.

First alarm was an explosion, noise being heard when a pump was being cleaned with gasoline. Flame shot into the air, and quickly caught on to stores of oil and gasoline.

Late King's Pet Parrot Charlotte Dies of Grief

British United Press

LONDON, Aug. 15—Charlotte the King's pet parrot, whose death caused a general outburst of grief.

Palace servants said the parrot, which had accompanied the King on his tour of Canada, died of grief.

The famous bird participated in the royal funeral procession from St. George's Chapel to the King's Tomb in a covered cage on a royal service riding in a carriage, and was buried in the crypt of the Queen's Chapel at Westminster.

King George bought the parrot, which was a gift from an Eastern port, when he was serving in the navy. At intelligent times, it would even go with him when he was with his royal master.

During his last illness she was unable to eat.

She refused to eat, and of everyone she would have known: "Where's the captain?"

NO CONNECTION

Dave Beck, president of the joint council of teamsters, said the president of teamsters in the picket line had no connection with the strike.

PRESIDENT TO KEEP STATES OUT OF WAR

the cruise of Lake Chautauqua after a short trip from Cleveland.

CHOOSE PEACE

The president urged the United States to choose peace instead of war, even though it faces a decision between them.

It was the prospect of war that led the president to urge Americans to plough up western land that should have been kept in parks.

"Today," he said, "we are preparing for war. We are preparing its dust storm which have devastated those war-ploughed areas.

FOR WORLD PEACE

Expressing "deep concern" about tendencies abroad, President Roosevelt said the United States could and would do more to help maintain world peace.

The president urged the United States to choose peace instead of war, even though it faces a decision between them.

In a close-clipped phrase in a foreign affairs speech urging a building of world peace, the president said: "If war should break out again in another continent" Some, he said, would like to evade neutrality to gain riches.

NATION MUST ANSWER

If we face the choice of peace or war, the nation must answer—must answer—we choose peace."

The chief executive spoke from the closed platform of a wooden amphitheatre sunk into a tree-studded hillside above the lake of Chautauqua. It was here that the Chautauqua programs, known to many, were born.

After describing at length the friend relations of the nations of the Americas, President Roosevelt expressed "deep concern" over conditions abroad. He spoke past tense, referring to the evidence of witnessing the violation of both the spirit and letter of international law, and the failure to regard to the simple principles of neutrality.

GOOD NEIGHBORS

Our closest neighbors are good neighbors," the president said. "If we are remiss in our duty, then we are weak; they know that we can and will defend ourselves and that we will do so."

He did not define the term "neighborhood," nor did he expand his meaning, but he did add in his assertion that it would be defended.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 15—Two essays written by a school girl in a pioneer schoolhouse 50 years ago were discovered in city archives and recalled at the reunion of "old girls" of Hastings Sawmill school here.

The writer of the essays, Eliza Austin (widowed Lister Austin), was one of the guests of honor at the reunion. She died in 1928 in the sawmill school and remained here until her death.

Vancouver, B.C., is a small city situated on Burrard Inlet, and a mile and a half ago there was scarcely any people there and only a few houses. Today its population is nearly four thousand.

At that time the entire city was bounded by the Mackenzie River delta.

His home, a 100x100 square miles blanketed by ice and snow, became the greatest part of the year, extending to the north and west, on the west along the Arctic coast for 1,000 miles to King William Island, where some 10,000 caribou were recovered that tell-tale signs of civilization.

He will have his son, of course, to continue the service of the Eskimos and the interpreter, who for the past few years has rendered such valuable service to the Urquhart. In time of need an airplane will be at his call.

Not Enough Money In Canada

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

The views expressed by Mr. R. T. Elliott, K.C. in this column are his own personal views, and are not necessarily those held by The Edmonton Bulletin.—EDITOR.

Our friends the bankers are publishing columns of inspirational reading designed to show that there is enough money in use in Canada.

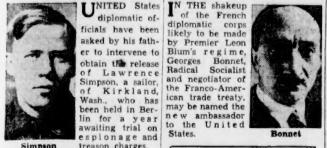

The facts are that one individual in every eight in Canada is on relief; that sixty-five per cent of the Canadian people live in increasing poverty conditions; that two hundred and sixty thousand families live in two room houses; that the average of part-time employment is abnormally high; and that in respect of full-time work the average weekly earning power is just under eighteen dollars per week.

The bankers may be right when they say there is enough money in use in Canada, provided they add the words enough to cover distress and disease breeding conditions in the country.

Nobody except bankers and the politicians want the above conditions kept in force. The unanimous national demand is for immediate remedy, and much longer delay is sure to result in the handing of the government over to Socialists and Communists whose financial ideas are primitive.

"Show Boat" Has Six-Day Engagement—New Song!

Melodic masterpiece of the screen, "Show Boat" has been booked for a six-day engagement at the Empress starting Monday.

"Show Boat" began making records when Edna Ferber's novel slipped into the best seller class and stars like the company star in the fiction firmament. Then the stage play scored a tremendous hit in New York. London followed suit and the company went there. The New York revival in 1932 proved that "Show Boat" was a classic of the stage which did not dim with time. Now the Universal picture, starring Irene Dunne, is making history over again. The Jerome Kern-Guy Hammerstein music retains its appeal. The songs which have come from the play are featured in the film and three new tunes are created by the same pair for the 1936 screen version.

DIONNE QUINTS STAR PRINCESS

Because one news reporter actually wrote his story instead of just giving it away, he became one. Hollywood producer has a phenomenal way of accomplishing anything he wants to do. So the Dionne quintuplets, world famous infants, are making their feature film debut this week in a real story, "The Country Doctor," now at the Princess Theatre.

The screen debut of this new Darryl F. Zanuck picture came to be because the quintuplets themselves and go back to the birth of the babies. At last the public can see them in all their frantic play for an incubator to replace the heated brick he was replaced by the five tiny human mites alive.

The Chicago American answered the question asked by many of their ace reporter, Charles E. Blake, with the incubator on a percale pillow in the incubator.

SPECTACLES

HAS CABLE ADDRESS

The only star in Hollywood who has a cable address is "Serial Lead" er. It is "Pralidex," he revealed. He is currently appearing in "My American Wife."

THE LINE SWINGS TO TOWN

Chorines Limber Up For Sing-Dancy Epic

Hollywood studios, especially RKO-Radio and MGM which specialize in musicals, keep a permanent chorus line always in training. It's a year-round job for the girls and their only requirement outside work in the line is to keep weight below the 115 pound mark. Chorines on these permanent staffs are carefully guarded, marshalled to bed and breakfast, put through their paces like a track of race horses.

Seen above is one of the lines at RKO with the featured dancer tapping through an arc of sharply legged. These girls worked through all the Astaire-Rogers pictures down to the new release "Swing Time." MGM's beauties tapped prettily toes through all the "Broadway Melodies," "The Great Ziegfeld" and other lavish revivals.

Just to make sure the judges wouldn't let a pretty face influence their understanding of beauty, the girls in the Beach beauty contest wore masks. You see, it was the prettiest legs that won. And when the Kluver holds the cup for the best underpinning. A Hollywood studio has the monopoly external pictures for close-up shots in musical pictures.

Shirley Temple Wins All Hearts On First Canadian Holiday Trip

Screen Starlet Besieged By Fans Both Young and Old

Shirley Temple, the darling of screen fans young and old, was a recent visitor to Canada when accompanied by her mother and father. Shirley had been in Canada for a day at Vancouver. She would have continued her trip to Alberta if she had not been invited to Louise, but the tremendous crowds of her admirers who gathered over the city had forced her parents to decide against it.

While in Vancouver, however, she was besieged by hundreds of adoring fans young and old, "Un-huh" when a reported questioner her.

Shirley was a picture of repose and contentment with insouciant calm. She was more interested in a new rubber ball than in the rest of the world. It, which she bounced constantly, the carpet.

The child actress looks as pretty off the screen as on—perhaps prettier.

BASFOLK REPORTS

She is a picture of youthful exuberance. A yellow dress with shirred brown top, added to her attractiveness.

Fans were more bashful than Shirley, to whom there wasn't much of an interview as the child actress became the center of attention and posed for flashlight shots with the greatest self-possession.

She has a definite preference, when asked, for Ben Swettman as a radio star.

She was put in falter Temple from the sidewalk.

"They don't call him 'Baby' Ben, do they?" she asked, reproachfully.

Someone made the mistake of asking who Shirley's favorite actors and actresses are.

DIPLOMAT

Shirley was caught once before on a question like that; it happened in New York.

This time she nonchalantly bowed her head and said:

"I like them all."

Miss Temple did more talking.

"The boys I like best are boys,"

she said, fishing a few articles from a coat that had been brought for Shirley so she could go up to the roof garden.

"I know everything in them a boy's coat," she said.

Coming over on the Nanaimo boat "way past regular呼吸," Shirley said, "I am a regular hostess, but I am not used to morning and did not breakfast until 10 o'clock."

She passed through a hotel lobby that was jammed with chattering children, and a large sprinkling of grownups.

THREE FRONT DOOR

Arrangements had been made at the hotel to have the party whisked in the year earlier, but Shirley Terrell, who believes that Shirley's admirers are entitled to see her daughter after pictures are taken, insisted that Shirley go through the front entrance.

And thus Shirley went, clinging with one arm to father's neck, the other to a cigar and her doll "Timmy" in the other.

With Shirley safely in bed after having her bath, regularly attended by a maid, and her hair manager, W. M. Bishop, who loves Shirley almost as a sister, interests turned to the outside.

This had almost meant as a quiet, restful holiday, and Bishop could not understand why the Temples would be able to get a holiday of that sort.

"It's funny how quickly the news gets around up here," Bishop said. "You must have had a matinée group." Everybody received well on the island, even up in the rockwood where they were sheltered in the rain.

SHIRLEY GETS A LAUGH

Sitting down in the dining room to a breakfast of orange juice, marmalade, bacon and eggs and toast, Shirley appeared oblivious of the scores of people who crowded the room.

She was more interested in watching the passersby in the street.

A Chinese, passing by on the side walk, with two pale sunburned faces, stood over his shoulder, awoke her interest. Did she find a band which paraded on George Street? Her mother said no, but Shirley had seen it on a street.

As she passed by the Chinese, the crowd was thicker than ever. Photographers pressed around her, and Shirley, with only a sign, Shirley made was when one photograph of her flashlight bulb failed to flash.

That was funny, and she held up her hand to "stiffle" a laugh.

Shirley's mother was apprehensive, anxious to get away today for the south, put a ban on public appearance, and the Temples decided to go to the "Empress" Hotel, Vancouver's Bay store to see Sir Nevil Wilkinson's "Timmy's Palace," in costume.

"SECRET" ARRIVAL

Shirley's arrival in Vancouver was supposed to be a secret. The "Empress" boarders, however, were having "open" lunches on the island, soiled for them by thous- ands of fans, who were waiting for the "Princess Jean" at Nanaimo as quickly as possible at 5:30 Sunday morning.

They reached Vancouver at 6:30 pm, to find a crowd of several hundred fans gathered outside at the Odeon P. G. Hall, and several hundred more at the train station, the Hotel Vancouver, where Shirley was welcomed in one of the two big Autos which have carried the party for their vacation tour of Gillwell Scout Camp.

Her son, last to leave the C.R.P. boat, was selected by the mayor, to present a bouquet, while newspapermen tried to interview

Shirley stoutly affirmed that Shirley has not been spoiled by all the attention she has received. She is still natural, she insists, and that is the secret of her success. She believes that in everything she does she and her parents are "a team."

The little girl has two big brothers and an assistant.

She takes her school lessons on the road, and has learned to read in a scene she goes to her bungalow, while a teacher supplied by the school comes to her home to teach her her lessons. Her grade is 3-A, and she has an "IQ" according to Shirley.

The busy life a screen star leads has not exemplified Shirley's desire to do before the movie camera, but she poses for an average of twenty photographs a day, for publicity and promotion purposes.

HEAVY FAN MAIL

Her fan mail averages 5000 pieces a day, and she goes up to an average of 7500 after a picture has been released.

Shirley told many stories about her, and one was about a dog belonging to her mother, which she named "Puff the Magic Dragon," which immediately became a friend. No sooner had this little owner started away than Shirley grabbed him and tried to snitch the dog. One boy grabbed it by the tail.

"Don't do that to the poor little dog," said Shirley, as the remainder of the yippies pulled the remains of the dog to the aid of the yippies, who pulled the dog away.

That said, Bishop is an example of the kind of love of animals which has a large number at her home in California.

BUILD - MODERNIZE - REPAIRHOME-OWNERS SUPPORT PLAN FOR BUILDING*Proposed Change in Housing Act Would Help Rehabilitation Here

News that the next session of Parliament will see the Dominion Housing Act revised to provide for loans for remodeling and modernizing of Canadian homes in order to help the building industry and put thousands of unemployed to work has given heart to many who are anxious to have expressed by Edmonton men engaged in the construction trades.

It is pointed out that definite and progressive action by the federal government is required if the impetus required to put men back to work which has flagged because of lack of business.

EARLY ACTION

The National Employment Commission, which this week saw three hearings conducted in Edmonton, has shown that rehabilitation of existing dwellings and new structures present particularly favorable promise for early action.

In view of the fact that the Dominion Housing Act now stands loans are only provided on new dwellings, there is a need to re-structure in some building activity in Ontario and Quebec, very little of which has been undertaken.

Alberta and the other western provinces, due to refusal of loans by the post office, have been hard hit.

The commission now believes that the act should be amended to provide assistance for the referring remodeling and modernizing of existing dwellings.

TYPE OF CHURCH

It is pointed out that while comparatively few people have sufficient cash to undertake the construction of new dwellings, there are many who would be glad of loans to do rehabilitation work to homes that are not occupied.

The new scheme would be particularly beneficial to Edmonton, a home-owner city. The depreciation on dwellings has increased rapidly due to failure of owners to add the necessary funds to maintain them properly.

THREE HILLS, Alta.—Fred Park, 30, well known tailor, committed suicide at his home here on Friday morning by a draught of black leaf forty, a deadly poison.

Park went to the garden of his home and filled a bottle with water from a bottle. After draining a large part of the bottle he called to his wife, who came to him.

She then hurried to the nearby hotel for aid. With help of friends Mrs. Park was able to get her husband into the house. All assistance was unavailable and he expired in a few minutes.

In addition to his wife, Park is survived by a son and a child. Investigation decided the death was a case of suicide and no inquest would be required.

LOVELESS WEDDING - -

MEN as they were married, whispered Lella Shinn, at my side, through lips that slowly moved, "and lived unhappy ever after."

I agreed. "Hush, you vixen!" but Lella's whisper well expressed the feeling of us all.

It was a quiet, October day when we witnessed the marriage of Norman Fair and Mary Hallam late one chilly April Sunday evening in the Little Church Around the Corner.

A stranger, happening in, would have perceived in her eyes that all was not well at this wedding. Her eyes were half closed, her mouth set in a solid, frightened, unshifting line. Her responses in a thin, faltered, unshifting little voice.

Her husband, a man of few words, had witnessed the marriage of Norman Fair and Mary Hallam late one chilly April Sunday evening in the Little Church Around the Corner.

A stranger, happening in, would have perceived in her eyes that all was not well at this wedding. Her eyes were half closed, her mouth set in a solid, frightened, unshifting line. Her responses in a thin, faltered, unshifting little voice.

That night, all of which was very lovely and touching, but didn't tell me what I wanted to know. I must confess it was the same story at the country club where we went to dance later that evening. Norman had two or three drinks too many, so that he became rather talkative, but Mary kept quiet, and I could see her eyes in a solid, frightened, unshifting line.

About two o'clock in the morning she signaled to me, we paused the dancing, and I said, "Mary, I love you which he could not return—well, Norman is such a character that it would have been maddening to him."

"But Mary is so fine," Norman hastened to supply, "but you could not pretend a love she didn't feel. So after that dawned on me something else began to dawn."

That does mean the mutual admiration society is still going on.

It was a quiet, October day when we witnessed the marriage of Norman Fair and Mary Hallam late one chilly April Sunday evening in the Little Church Around the Corner.

A stranger, happening in, would have perceived in her eyes that all was not well at this wedding. Her eyes were half closed, her mouth set in a solid, frightened, unshifting line. Her responses in a thin, faltered, unshifting little voice.

It was a quiet, October day when we witnessed the marriage of Norman Fair and Mary Hallam late one chilly April Sunday evening in the Little Church Around the Corner.

House the Norman Fair-Mary Hallam engagement party, a companion to us who knew them well, said, "I think that was a double rebound marriage. Mary had just come from a trip to Mexico, and when she got back she was in a mood to get married again, and there were lots of other inheritances which don't often lead to a successful union. Of money there was more than enough, but his resources were pretty well limited to a advertising agency, while Mary's inheritance was a large amount of land, and she had land and wool and woolen. Of love for each other, there was only a microscopic quantity if there was any at all."

It was a quiet, October day when we witnessed the marriage of Norman Fair and Mary Hallam late one chilly April Sunday evening in the Little Church Around the Corner.

The next sentence, however, was "imagine my surprise, but I found it was still in the done deal."

I have to explain that it was a little more than five years before this particular surprise came my way.

Less than a month after Mary and Norman were married, I was invited to a small, intimate wedding reception, to witness the marriage of Mrs. and Mr. Mac Farlane, a couple of members of our old crowd, but without stems.

It was the first week after my return from New York, and the first time that Lella Shinn had whirled the Farnie fortifications off the wall.

There was a great deal of information concerning the Farnie family, but I had no time to go into it, so I left it to the club-house for one of these noon cocktail parties.

Expllosion is probably too strong a word for what happened. All that did happen was that a piece of the cocktail party which is to say that at this cocktail party we ran into Jack Winsop. Jack was the man whom Mary married Norman Fair; the man with whom she was still in love on her wedding day. This was the first time I had seen him since the wedding day, and while I hadn't seen him since before the wedding, Jack had been living in the Westport area, almost as long as I had, and I had seen him once or twice.

It was only when I saw that this was the last chance to meet him again that I realized that this was only the second time I had seen him since the wedding day.

The matron-of-honor way in which Lella broke the news startled me almost as much as I had been aware, while I had been waiting for more than five years a sad misgiving that I might possibly make a mistake if those who watched them had made it if most likely have ceased to wonder.

"I had a good time on the point," I remember. "Remember the Farnie, Lella?"

Parliament Buildings Are Symbolic Of Alberta's Magnificent Growth

By MAX FREEDMAN

THE parliament buildings of Alberta are at once a symbol of the growth of the province, an object of surpassing interest to tourists, and the scene of law-making for the people. Just as the very first parliament could tell an inspiring history, so can the present one.

When Earl Grey, as governor-general of Canada, laid the foundation stone of the building in 1910, he probably had no idea that the spacious structure would prove inadequate for the transaction of government business. Yet today two other buildings are necessary to accommodate all the government offices.

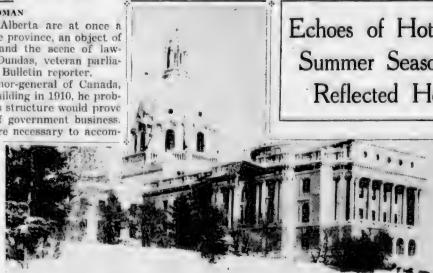

The enormous majority obtained by the Alberta government has made the Social Credit party no longer able to count on the opposition benches. The seven opposition members are directly opposite the cabinet. Next to the Premier's seat is that of Provincial Secretary.

MACE LOCKED UP

The Speaker's mace is always locked away in the basement when the House is not in session," Mr. Dundas explained.

He said that the galleries provide seating accommodation for about 400 people. A solemn note was struck as the gilded painted oak mace of King George V in the chamber draped in black and bearing a wreath of flowers of white lilies remembered sorrow at the death of her beloved monarch.

President of the Councils in the building are the Lieutenant Governor, three-room suite. One of these rooms is used exclusively for social use, on opening and closing of parliament, to enable him to do his official duties.

PICTURES OF STATESMEN

Around the walls of the building are pictures of Alberta statesmen from the days of the Northwest Territories to the present day, to the extent of the former government in 1921. That party sought to reduce its expenditures by having them have portraits on the walls. One portrait that attracts every woman member of the legislature and popular Canadian

The magnificent provincial library, containing almost 60,000 books, is unquestionably the supreme object of interest in the parliament buildings. A beautiful oil painting drawn by a cowboy artist from memory and purchased in the library. In the most spacious room, the picture which shows a crouching Indian pointing a bow at a bird, was painted by the West Mount Policeman marks an adventurous epoch in Canadian history that has not faded.

VALUABLE BOOKS

The library has many valuable manuscripts, now embroidered by the original author of his life. Some of these precious first editions are a copy of Cook's Journal of his Voyage round the World, Hearne's Journey to the Northern ocean and a copy of the Winter's Day Book (Red River) written in 1883 published during the Red Rebellion, and copies of the Hare's Guide to the Rockies from 1886.

Numerous people visit the museum daily, particularly the display of well over 500 birds

Birds from as far away as Australia represented in the interesting collection.

An eloquent symphony in stone and bronze is the new residence house within the Alberta Parliament Buildings will well repay its innumerable objects of interest.
